JIM CRESCENZO, DIRECTOR

Every endeavour, every cause, must have a driving force, and in the East End Boys Club, that unstoppable, never-ending force is Jim Crescenzo. He is not only the chief administrator and organizer but personally takes on many other roles, from driver, to counsellor to mentor to leader of our community. His unique hands-on approach ensures that our boys do not fall through the cracks.

Jim's firm commitment to seeing the boys succeed by staying in school, keeping away from drugs and gangs, staying on the right side of the law and completing a trades training program or post-secondary education are his genuine ambitions for the boys he has served for the past 37 years!

Jim is truly an on-the-ground leader for the EEBC members and all the individuals who work for the Club. It is through his example that our mentors and donors fully engage with our boys.

As an actor, counsellor, theatre and film teacher, Jim provided many avenues for troubled boys to find their strengths, to strive to be better. In January of 2018 Jim took the next step forward by forming the East End Boys Club. With the goal of delivering quality programs in theatre and film, indigenous culture, mentorship, educational and counselling support, job-entry and scholarship opportunities under one common umbrella, Jim was able to assemble an impressive and highly professional group of people who work with the boys in various capacities to build skill sets that will give them a better future. The extended community has recognized Jim's work and listed below are a few of the accolades his efforts have garnered.

Jim's Theatre and Film Programs have received over 600 awards for City, Provincial, National and International Competitions since the start of his teaching career in 1981.

He has personally been recognized with:

2017 Motion Picture Production Industry Association Community Builder Award

2016 Prime Minister's Award for Teaching Excellence

2015 Peace Medallion from the YMCA of Greater Vancouver

2015 Award for Faith and Community, City in Focus

2014 Italian-Canadian Man of the Year

2012 Queen's Diamond Jubilee Medal

Dream Big Productions and After-School Film Program

Created in 1998, Dream Big Productions is the home of Templeton Secondary School's Media Arts program, which includes secondary level classes in Film and Animation and the very successful The After-School Film Program (ASFP), an advanced film program for students who are passionate about filmmaking and want to create films with mentorship from working industry professionals at all stages of the production process. Since its inception in 2001, the films produced in the ASFP win multiple awards every year in both local and international film festivals including the prestigious All American High School Film Festival in New York City and the BC Student Film Festival. ASFP films screen to thousands of people every year and are regarded as some of the best student-produced work in the country. Most of the students that participate in the After-school Film Program go on to collaborate in post-secondary film programs and careers in creative industries. We'll have several peer mentors from ASFP joining us for this camp.

FILM CAMP INSTRUCTOR

CORIN BROWNE was in high school when a counsellor suggested that her generation should be prepared to face up to five distinct career shifts over their lifetime. Rather than feel like she was losing out, Corin's reaction was deep relief that the future held multiple possibilities and could be crafted from personal passion, curiosity and hard work. Fast forward twenty-five years, and Corin wears three distinct but related professional hats; media producer, community engaged artist and film and animation teacher. With an academic background in critical media education (BA and MA Communication, SFU) and digital production, Corin has been working as a community engaged artist for over 15 years. In addition to independent film work, primarily in documentary and news magazine formats, Corin is also the co-artistic director of Housing Matters Media Project, founding member of the nationally recognized Summer Visions Film Institute for Youth and was the resident filmmaker at Templeton Secondary where she joyfully mentored young media makers for an entire generation. Corin's projects have ranged from a low- watt pirate television project to Bollywood-style PSAs educating farmworkers about pesticide contamination and large-scale, installation projects exploring the impact of the housing crisis on young artists and youth living in government care. Corin is also a certified secondary public school educator and is thrilled to be working alongside long-term mentor Jim Crescenzo as the Media Arts and Animation teacher at Templeton Secondary School. Some of Templeton's recent awards include:

FILM CAMP FOR ELEMENTARY SCHOOL STUDENTS – JULY 29 - AUGUST 2

Young Moviemakers is an award-winning acting and film program for children and youth ages 5-18. With the help of our experienced instructors, participants work in groups to develop and produce their films, which is then premiered in front of family, friends and the community.

Many Young Moviemakers alumni launched into careers in Vancouver's prestigious film industry both behind and in front of the camera, such as starring in programs produced by Netflix and Disney.

In 2017, Young Moviemakers was awarded with the BC Job Makers Award and in 2019 they won the Small Business BC Award for their Community Impact. Young Moviemakers is often considered the best program of its kind in Canada and in 2019 their co-founder was honoured as one of "B.C.'s most enterprising young business leaders" in the BC Business 30 Under 30 list.

Young Moviemakers works with over 1000 youth annually and the films made by students have won more than 100 film festival awards worldwide, including Best Overall Film at the 2017 TIFF Young Filmmakers Showcase.

DANCE CAMP – JULY 29 – AUGUST 2

In this weeklong summer dance camp, we'll explore the foundations of contemporary movement and the freedom of choreography as we work toward a group piece to showcase at the end of the week! We'll have the opportunity to explore partner work, have fun with improv movement and work as a team to create something amazing. This program will encourage you to dive into your expression as a performer, connect with the movement, and learn what it means to be a part of a cast of dancers. We hope you come ready to work hard and have fun!

Growing up just outside of Vancouver, JENNIFER PENNER was immersed in the world of dance from the young age of 3. Classical ballet was her focus in younger years, as she completed exams with the Royal Academy of Dance and successfully attended local competitions. She went on to broaden her dance education in modern, contemporary, jazz and musical theatre - training locally in Langley and traveling to The Edge in Los Angeles and Spotlight Dance Centre in Las Vegas. Alongside her dance training, she has been passionate about music, completing many examinations with the Royal Conservatory of Music for piano, and training classically in voice.

Following her training, Jennifer worked professionally for Carnival Cruise Lines throughout the United States, working with a large cast of dancers and expanding her experience in the realm of production stage shows. Upon returning to Vancouver, she had the opportunity to perform for the 2010 Vancouver Olympics along with various other productions in Vancouver. She continues to work professionally as a dance instructor in a variety of disciplines (ballet, contemporary, jazz, musical theatre and voice) with a focus on choreographing musical theatre products for a Fine Arts School in the Lower Mainland. Most recently Jennifer has become a certified yoga and pilates instructor, incorporating principles from both methods into her skillset as a dance teacher.
